

Youth Volunteer Award

Logan Clark, Fearless Volunteer, West Scotland

“Logan’s enthusiasm is entirely contagious – he makes our little Scotland team brighter and increases our productivity and passion to get it right for the communities we are lucky enough to serve”.

Overview

It is difficult to overstate the contribution Logan has made and continues to make in Scotland for the charity. Logan volunteers because he is genuinely passionate about improving the lives of people in their communities. Always bursting with great ideas and an acute knack to specifically target and hit the mark with young people. His contributions are invaluable whether it be relating to campaign content, artwork or expressing so clearly the challenges facing young people. Logan is also a major draw at events he attends and has made a massive contribution to ensuring the success of the Fearless podcast project. A career as a leader in community development awaits!

Judges' comments

The judges all agreed that Logan is obviously a remarkable young man and so deserving of real recognition for his achievements for the charity. They commented what a terrific advocate he is in Scotland for Fearless and clearly has a wisdom beyond his years. A nomination that prompted huge admiration from the judges. Such a worthy winner of this award.
